BAG AND LINER FAQS

What's the difference between low- and high-density bags and liners?
These terms describe two different types of polyethylene used in manufacturing. Bags made from low-density polyethylene feel thicker and softer. They also offer exceptional tear resistance. Bags made from high-density polyethylene are thinner, feel more rigid and provide increased puncture resistance. Because they're thinner, high-density bags usually cost less, even though they're just as strong!

What's a micron?
A micron is a unit of measurement equal to one millionth of a meter. It is used to designate the thickness, or gauge, of high-density bags.

What's a mil?
A mil is a unit of measurement equal to one thousandth of an inch. It denotes the gauge of low-density bags.

Strong, Leakproof X-SEAL Design
Most Medline bags and liners feature a super-strong X-SEAL bottom. The X-SEAL design is a remarkable improvement over traditional flat-sealed or gussetted bags. Because it has no gussets, an X-SEAL liner has no weak spots along the bottom seal, where leaks could occur in typical bags and liners. Its unique shape allows an X-SEAL liner to easily conform to any container, distributing refuse evenly around the bag for maximum carrying capacity.

The Ultimate in Chemical-Dispensing Technology

The world's smallest and easiest-to-use dilution system gives you complete control over chemical costs!

This chemical system can be yours for free when you purchase five cases of product!

- Fifty percent more compact—this unit requires up to 50 percent less wall space than traditional dilution control systems, allowing it to go places others can't.
- One-handed dispensing—simply dial the product you wish to dispense and the system does the rest!
- Dial-in accuracy—just select the chemical you want, and the SCS^2 automatically dilutes the super-concentrate to the exact strength needed.
- Forty-three percent faster bucket fill—5 GPM flow rate is 43 percent faster than the standard 3.5 GPM in competitive units.
- Incredibly accurate dilution ratios—users always have the right concentration.
- Reduced chemical contact—each SCS^2 half-gallon container comes with an integrated, non-removable sipper tube. Splash-free connections are as easy as screwing on a bottle cap.
- Modular design/locking baskets—one dispensing module and two chemical storage modules (12"W x 9.5"H x 8.5"D). Lockable baskets (lock not included). Holds up to three half-gallon containers.

Loop-End Mop or Cut-End Mop?

Our loop-end mops last longer and perform better than cut-end mops. They are made from a single continuous strand of yarn, so they won't fray or unravel. They feature tail bands that keep yarns in place for even, increased floor coverage. And you can launder them again and again for longer life and better hygiene. The mops are available in three sizes, so each member of your housekeeping crew can use a correctly proportioned mop.

The difference is in the mop! Regular dust control will contribute to a healthier environment, improve your facility's appearance and ultimately save you time and money.

All are loop-end, balanced-blend mops unless otherwise noted.

According to CDC guidelines, in order to lower the risks of nosocomial (healthcare settings acquired) infections, it is strongly recommended (Category IA) to provide your personnel with:

- Instant hand sanitizer, which should be used during the entire day between patients, before and after eating or using the restroom

- Soap and water, which should be used when the hands look visibly soiled or dirty

- Moisturizing lotion, to avoid skin cracks (where bacteria can sit and be difficult to remove)

Epi-Clenz®

Incorporating Epi-Clenz instant hand sanitizer into your facility's hand-washing procedures helps you meet the CDC guidelines. Epi-Clenz is an essential germ-killing aid for your employees when soap and water are not readily available. Contains ethyl alcohol and moisturizers to clean hands as it kills 99.99 percent of the most common disease-causing germs. With aloe vera and vitamin E to soothe the skin.
