Helpful Hint

Polyester is a stronger fiber than cotton. It also resists water absorption and has minimal shrinkage. This means that an 85% cotton/15% polyester blended terry cloth will last longer, dry faster and shrink less than a 100% cotton product.

A Brighter White

Hydrogen peroxide, rather than chlorine bleach, is the preferred method of bleaching a terry in the finishing process. The fibers of the terry feel softer and it typically produces a brighter, more consistent white.
